Change Fast or Fall Behind, Says AirAsia Co-Founder

Tony Fernandes says hiring outsiders and retraining everyone helped the airline group adapt quickly

Tony Fernandes, CEO of Capital A and co-founder of AirAsia

Every one of AirAsia's 26,000 employees is taking courses in artificial intelligence, Tony Fernandes, CEO of Capital A and co-founder of AirAsia, told Gateway Gulf 2026.

He was speaking at a session on aviation, tourism and investment, where speakers discussed how regional carriers can adapt to global disruption.

Fernandes said AirAsia was among the first airlines in Southeast Asia to sell tickets online, at a time when few people used the internet and credit cards were uncommon. Getting traditional airline staff to embrace the shift was hard, so the airline brought in people from consumer and technology backgrounds. "We need people to think differently," he said, explaining why AirAsia hires talent from outside the industry.

Built to Change

Crises, he said, are when the ability to change matters most, and the airline looks for people who can change radically. COVID-19 pushed the company to rethink its processes, and he said technology is not enough on its own. The mindset of the people using it counts too.

AirAsia has put AI training in front of its entire workforce, giving staff a basic understanding so they can improve processes in areas from revenue management to operations. Fernandes said new technology should be embraced, not resisted. The goal, he said, is to increase efficiency, reduce costs and improve decisions.

"Technology alone cannot drive transformation; it is the mindset of people, their willingness to embrace change and think differently that makes the real difference."

Bahrain Eyes Joint GCC Tourism Packages

Tourism chief Sara Buhiji says joint GCC packages and linked events will turn one-off visitors into repeat travellers

TDT | Manama

Bahrain is working with tourism authorities across the GCC on joint promotions and packages, and is linking its business events with leisure to bring visitors back, Sara Ahmed Buhiji, CEO of the Bahrain Tourism & Exhibitions Authority and Chairman of Exhibition World Bahrain, told Gateway Gulf 2026.

She was speaking at a session on cross-border collaboration in tourism, sports and experiences, where panellists discussed how regional proximity and complementary attractions could unlock new investment.

Joint Packages

Buhiji said the authority is working closely with its GCC counterparts to offer travellers combined packages, such as spending a few nights in Bahrain and then flying on to another regional destination. The aim, she said, is to promote the Gulf as a set of complementary destinations rather than competing ones.

A Small Island With a Big Story

Bahrain's strength, she said, lies in its history and its size. "We sit on 5,000 years of civilization," she said, describing a small island in the middle of the GCC that is easy to explore and rich in stories to tell. The authority wants to link those stories together, so visitors see heritage, culture, beaches and food in one trip.

Sara Ahmed Buhiji, CEO of the Bahrain Tourism & Exhibitions Authority

More Than a Business Trip

Many visitors arrive for business or events, and Buhiji said the authority makes sure those trips connect with leisure. "We don't want them to come just one time for business," she said, adding that the aim is for them to return with their families.

She said the visitor experience starts the moment travellers land, with a smooth welcome and hotel check-in, and extends to good food and hospitality. What visitors remember most, she said, is the sense of human connection they find in Bahrain.

Diversification Gives Bahrain a Crisis Shield

Minister Noor Alkhulaif and Lord Grimstone say strong fundamentals matter most to long-term investors

TDT | Manama

Minister of Sustainable Development and Economic Development Board (EDB) Chief Executive Noor bint Ali Alkhulaif

Lord Gerry Grimstone, former UK Minister for Investment

Noor bint Ali Alkhulaif stressed that Bahrain's economic diversification, strong fundamentals and long-term planning provide resilience during crises, highlighting the importance of leadership, government coordination and private-sector partnerships in sustaining growth and attracting investment.

Oil now makes up only about 14 percent of Bahrain's economy, Minister of Sustainable Development and Economic Development Board (EDB) Chief Executive Noor bint Ali Alkhulaif told Gateway Gulf 2026, arguing that this diversification is what carries the Kingdom through crises.

She was speaking at a session on "Stable Foundations for Long-Term Growth", which examined what drives business leaders and capital allocators across global markets, from regulation to access to capital and partnerships.

"Diversification is not something that happens overnight," she said, calling it a long-term investment backed by the leadership's vision, shared by the private sector. Every country faces challenges every few years, she added, and the job is to prepare the country and its people, whether for a health crisis like COVID-19 or what she described as unprecedented attacks by Iran on the region and on Bahrain. "It's our fundamentals that are going to carry this through."

Safe From Day One

Alkhulaif said Bahrain felt safe from the first day of the attacks, a sign of the leadership and the structures in place, with teams looking after defence, health, education and food security. The EDB then asked what its stakeholders, the companies in Bahrain and those looking to invest, needed. Its team worked directly with ministries to answer their requests, she said, because there is no line between the EDB and the government. Any EDB official could call a ministry and ask for help.

Passion Counts

Lord Gerry Grimstone, former UK Minister for Investment, said investors constantly weigh risk factors, and geopolitical risk has become as important as any in recent years. But no place is free of risk, he said, and investment is a long-term game.

Attracting investment, he said, is 80 percent process, such as getting regulations right. What makes the real difference is the remaining 20 percent: passion and entrepreneurial energy. "At the margin, togetherness in the country and passion are extremely important in attracting investment," said Lord Grimstone, who described himself as an investment banker.

Nobody, he said, even the most powerful people in the world, knows when the current conflict will stop. Investors should therefore look through the short term to the fundamentals and to places where investment is welcomed.

MPs push for two Muharraq footbridges

TDT | Manama
Mohammed Darwish

MPs will debate plans for two new footbridges in Muharraq today after a parliamentary committee voted unanimously in favour of the crossings, rejecting the Works Ministry's claim that they are not needed.

The bridges would link Qalali with the coast and Al Hala with the fishermen's port, giving residents, fishermen and visitors safer ways to cross busy roads.

The Public Utilities and Environment Committee has called for the scheme to go ahead, citing the risk of road accidents and serious injuries.

The proposal, put forward by MPs Khalid BuAnaq and Hisham Al Awadhi, also calls for government bodies and private firms to work together on building the bridges.

The Works Ministry disagrees.

It says two footbridges are already planned along Dry Dock Highway, linking Qalali and Samaheej with the coast and corniche.

Khalifa Al Kabeer Highway

The crossings form part of roadworks aimed at improving access to Amwaj Islands and Dilmunia.

Pedestrian signals would also be added at the junction of Dry Dock Highway and Road 38.

But the ministry has given no date for the work, saying it will take place under its future programme once funds are available.

On Khalifa Al Kabeer Highway, where MPs seek a bridge between Al Hala and the fishermen's port, the ministry says two safe crossing points already exist nearby.

One is a footbridge near the Coast Guard headquarters. The other is at the traffic lights where Khalifa Al Kabeer Highway meets Abdulrahman Al Fadhel Avenue.

Khalid BuAnaq, MP

The ministry argues that footbridges are needed mainly on fast, busy roads where large numbers of people cross.

Elsewhere, traffic lights and marked pedestrian crossings can do the job, depending on road speeds and foot traffic.

Muharraq Municipal Council takes a different view.

It supports both bridges, arguing that they would make crossing safer, ease traffic jams and give fishermen, residents and visitors better access to the waterfront.

The parliamentary committee also sees wider gains for the area.

Marriage loan plan heads to Parliament vote

TDT | Manama

Dr Ali Al Nuaimi, MP

Young people could get government loans to help them marry without paying a penny in interest under a plan MPs will debate and vote today

The scheme would help couples meet the cost of starting married life without facing extra interest bills, giving those struggling to find the money a helping hand.

MP Dr Ali Al Nuaimi, who put forward the plan, says the loans would ease the strain on young people hoping to wed and help them build a home together.

Parliament's financial and economic affairs committee, headed by MP Ahmed Al Salloom, has given the proposal its full support, with all members voting in favour.

The committee said the loans would encourage young people to marry and help them pay for their early household needs without the added cost of interest.

Dr Al Nuaimi said the aim was to help young couples start married life on sound financial footing while strengthening family life.

But key questions remain unanswered.

The plan gives no figure for how much couples could borrow, who would qualify or how long they would have to pay the money back.

It also leaves open which government body would hand out the loans and oversee repayments.

"The proposed interest-free loans aim to ease the financial burden on young couples and help them begin married life without the added pressure of borrowing costs."

Muharraq Reviews Waste and Road Plans

Council discusses recycling in schools, coastal development, traffic improvements and support for productive families

TDT | Manama
Hasan Barakat

Muharraq Municipal Council has reviewed future waste management plans, recycling initiatives in schools, coastal development and road improvement proposals during its fifth meeting, highlighting the need for long-term planning to support the governorate's growing communities.

During discussions on the Public Cleanliness Law, Councillor Fadhel Abbas Al Oud called for a comprehensive strategy to address future waste management and traffic challenges, supported by engineering expertise and international experience.

"You cannot expect a modern, developed society with no traffic and no waste. That is paradise," Al Oud said, stressing the importance of planning for the next 10 to 20 years.

Ammar Yasser, Director of the Household Waste Department at the Ministry of Municipalities Affairs and Agriculture, briefed members on future waste management plans and practices adopted across GCC countries.

The council also discussed introducing recycling initiatives in schools, with members calling for better coordination between the municipality and the Ministry of Education to encourage environmental awareness among students.

Coastal development in Dair

Ammar Yasser, Director of the Household Waste Department at the Ministry of Municipalities Affairs and Agriculture and Samaheej was another key topic. Councillors called for part of the approximately 100,000-square-metre coastal land allocated under a 2010 royal order to be reserved as a free public beach, alongside proposed investment projects.

EWA Explains Fixed Monthly Bills

Households can spread electricity and water payments across the year, with retroactive credits available for eligible subscribers

Bahraini households can avoid seasonal fluctuations in electricity and water payments through the Electricity and Water Authority's (EWA) fixed monthly bill system, which allows subscribers to pay a consistent amount throughout the year.

The system calculates monthly payments based on average consumption over the previous 12 months, helping families manage household expenses more predictably without changing existing electricity and water tariffs.

The scheme was explained during an awareness session organised by the Northern Municipal Council in cooperation with EWA under its Hayakum 20 community programme.

Ahmed Najeeb Al Jamea, Director of Subscribers Services, said eligible Bahraini citizens receiving government subsidies for their first homes could benefit from exceptional retroactive registration arrangements covering May to October 2026, subject to having at least six months of bills.

Under the arrangement, differences between actual bills from May to September 2026 and the fixed monthly payments are credited to subscribers' accounts. The balance can be used to pay future bills or settle outstanding amounts.

Al Jamea said registration was straightforward, required no bank commitments and did not require applicants to clear previous arrears.

Applications can be submitted through EWA's official website.

Your Child Breaks It, Who Pays?

Bahrain law defines when parents or supervisors must pay compensation

TDT | Manama
Rehab Mohammad

A child may accidentally break a bottle in a shop, damage a parked car or knock products off supermarket shelves while playing. These incidents may seem minor, but they raise an important legal question: Who is responsible for paying for the damage?

In an interview with The Daily Tribune, lawyer Manal Dhahi explained how Bahraini law deals with damage caused by children, including situations where parents, schools or other parties may be held financially responsible.

Under Article 170 of Bahrain's Civil Code No. 19 of 2001, a person who is legally or contractually responsible for supervising a child may be required to compensate for damage caused by the child, provided the legal conditions are met.

However, this person can avoid liability by proving that they fulfilled their duty of supervision, or that the damage would have happened even if they had done so.

For example, if a child throws a ball at a parked car and breaks its window or damages its side mirror while playing, the car owner may seek compensation for repair costs. The circumstances of the incident and who was responsible for supervising the child at the time would be considered.

Dhahi explained that responsibility does not always fall on parents. It depends on where the incident takes place and who is legally responsible for supervising the child.

At schools, the teacher becomes responsible for supervising the child while the student is under their care, in accordance with Article 170 of the Civil Code.

For example, if a student breaks a classroom window or damages another student's belongings during a lesson, legal responsibility must be determined based on the circumstances of the incident.

Under Article 171, the state assumes responsibility in place of the teacher in government schools, while the owner of a private school is responsible in private schools. The state or school owner may seek compensation from the teacher if the teacher is found to be at fault.

Lawyer Manal Dhahi

In shopping malls and supermarkets, responsibility also depends on the circumstances and on who was responsible for supervising the child.

For example, if a child accompanying their parents drops a bottle or damages a product on a supermarket shelf, compensation may be requested for the damaged item. The responsibility of the person supervising the child would then be considered.

The same applies if a child pushes a shopping trolley into a shelf, causing products to fall and break. The supermarket management is not automatically responsible simply because the incident happened inside the store. Liability depends on the circumstances and whether an error or negligence by the management contributed to the damage.

However, if the incident happens in a children's play area or nursery operated by the shopping mall, the operator may be held responsible if it was in charge of supervising the child and the legal conditions for liability are met.

Batelco by Beyon and Mazad Renew Partnership to Advance Circular Economy

Partnership has enabled the responsible reuse of more than 100,000 retired assets with a gross book value of BD2.2 million, and no assets sent to landfill

TDT | Manama

Batelco by Beyon, part of the Beyon Group, and Mazad, Bahrain's leading digital auction and marketplace platform specialising in live and online auctions, have signed a renewed partnership agreement during Gateway Gulf 2026, in the presence of H.E. Shaikh Abdulla bin Khalifa Al Khalifa, Chairman of Beyon Group. The companies also announced significant achievements as part of their collaboration to responsibly manage and repurpose Batelco's retired assets.

During 2026 to date, more than 100,000 retired assets, including machinery, equipment and scrap, have been collected from over 1,000 Batelco locations across the Kingdom, ranging from its headquarters and facilities across Bahrain to the Hawar Islands. Together, these represent close to 300 tonnes of retired assets and surplus materials, including an estimated 230 tonnes of mobile shelters, vehicles and other steel assets, 25 tonnes of electronics and network equipment and 35 tonnes of furniture and other materials. With a combined gross book value of BD2.2 million the assets have been managed through Mazad's platform and asset disposal services, providing an efficient and transparent process for bringing a diverse range of retired assets to market and extending their productive use.

All assets sold through the collaboration have been repurposed, with none sent to landfill. Extending the useful life of assets and materials, and recovering materials from items that cannot be reused, supports Beyon Group's approach to the circular economy by reducing waste and keeping materials in productive use for longer. These efforts contribute to a reduction of approximately 1,000 tonnes of CO_2e emissions.

Beyon Chief Communications and Sustainability Officer, Shaikh Bader bin Rashid Al Khalifa said: "We are very pleased to renew our partnership with Mazad and shine a light on the results of our collaboration, demonstrating how sustainability can be embedded into practical business processes across our operations. More than 100,000 retired assets, representing close to 300 tonnes of materials have been repurposed rather than sent to landfills, with the reuse and recovery helping to avoid more than 1000 tonnes of CO_2e emissions. Working with Mazad has enabled us to manage these assets responsibly and efficiently by extending the useful life of materials that may otherwise have gone to waste."

Commenting on the announcement, Nezar Habib, Chief Executive Officer of Mazad, said: "We are proud of what our collaboration with Batelco has achieved and look forward to continuing the journey through our renewed partnership. Managing more than 100,000 assets collected from over 1,000 locations demonstrates the scale and operational capability that can be achieved through an efficient and transparent approach to asset management. Through Mazad's platform and expertise, retired assets can be efficiently brought to market and connected with purchasers who can put them back into productive use. This creates value from assets that have reached the end of their original use while supporting more responsible business practices.

Both Beyon and Mazad are portfolio companies of Bahrain Mumtalakat Holding Company (Mumtalakat). Their collaboration demonstrates how complementary capabilities across Mumtalakat's portfolio can support operational efficiency while contributing to more sustainable business practices in the Kingdom.

Fridge cyberattack hits supermarkets across Europe

Supermarkets in Belgium, Estonia, Finland, Ireland, Luxembourg and the Netherlands affected

- No one had yet claimed responsibility for Monday's incidents
- EU said the bloc was taking the incidents "very seriously"

AFP | Brussels, Belgium

Grocery stores from Sweden to Portugal were hit yesterday by a suspected cyberattack on their freezer systems, in what the EU denounced as a deliberate attempt to disrupt the bloc's food chain.

Supermarkets in Belgium, Estonia, Finland, Ireland, Luxembourg and the Netherlands were among at least eight countries affected in the incident, which came three weeks after a cyberattack caused mass disruption in French grocery stores.

Food retailers were forced to throw out produce that had spoiled or was at risk of spoiling after refrigerator temperatures soared overnight.

No one had yet claimed responsibility for Monday's incidents, nor for the October 12 attack on major French retailers that likewise forced hundreds of stores to toss out food.

The EU's food and agriculture commissioner, Christophe Hansen, said the bloc was taking the incidents "very seriously", calling the repeated cyberattacks "deeply concerning".

"They are a deliberate attempt to disrupt our food supply chain and undermine consumers' confidence in it -- a warning that we must take seriously," Hansen said in a statement.

In Belgium, where dozens of stores across multiple grocery chains reported disruptions, federal prosecutors announced the opening of an investigation, without qualifying the incident as a cyberattack at this stage.

But several of the chains affected were unequivocal.

"It's a cyberattack, there is no other reason," said Mich Vergauwen, a spokesman for Carrefour Belgium which reported disruption in about 15 of its 700 stores.

An Ikea Belgium spokeswoman likewise said its store in southwestern Mons was hit by a cyberattack, causing freezer temperatures to rise suddenly in the early hours of Monday.

'Cyber incident'

Belgian industrial refrigeration group Sabcobel told AFP it had begun securing its installations after the October 12 attack in France, but around 10 percent were still not fixed and some were in the shops affected on Monday.

While they did not explicitly call it a cyberattack, chains Delhaize, Colruyt and Intermarche also experienced technical problems with fridges in dozens of stores across Belgium, with four Delhaize stores in Luxembourg also affected.

Musgrave, which owns Supervalu in Ireland, said 13 of its stores were affected by a cyber-incident. A small number of corner shops in the Netherlands also suffered disruptions.

In Portugal, the Mosqueteiros group confirmed to AFP incidents at seven Intermarche stores linked to a cyberattack, which "appears to have targeted an external service provider responsible for managing the refrigeration systems."

And in Sweden, chain Coop confirmed six of its around 800 stores had been hit.

"We can confirm that it is a cyber incident. The problem has now been resolved and the fridges and freezers are working as normal," spokesman Carlos Cancino told AFP.

He said Coop did not know who was behind the attack, but noted that the affected stores had been connected to a 4G mobile network, not the updated 5G system, which made them "more exposed" to hackers.

'Vulnerabilities'

Swedish chain Ica also said "a limited number" of its stores experienced refrigeration problems, without confirming a cyberattack.

According to Ica spokesperson Helena Johansson, the affected stores were all connected to an external refrigeration control system provided by Danish manufacturer Danfoss -- the same supplier targeted in the October 12 cyberattack on French retailers.

She referred all queries to Danfoss, which had yet to respond to an AFP request for a comment.

In Finland, irregular temperatures had also been detected in a few smaller grocery stores belonging to the Kesko group.

"We are currently investigating the cause, and interference via the network has not yet been ruled out," Petri Kayhko, head of Kesko's corporate security, told AFP.

Roni Kokkola, an information security specialist at the National Cyber Security Centre at Finland's Transport and Communications Agency Traficom, would not rule out cyber interference "as far as Finland is concerned."

"We've seen this in Europe in the past few months, so it spreading beyond France to other countries has been expected," he told AFP.

"Nowadays it's very typical that all kinds of vulnerabilities are being exploited ever more actively and rapidly."

In Estonia, at least one supermarket was attacked by hackers who raised the temperature in the refrigeration units to 50C, public broadcaster ERR reported.

The units were older models delivered by Danfoss, similar to the ones targeted in the France attack, Jann Mutso, director of Kitman Coldtech, a manufacturer and distributor of advanced refrigeration systems, told ERR.

"The handwriting is the same," Mutso said.

Iran says in 'intensive' negotiations with US to avert war

AFP | Tehran, Iran

Iran yesterday said "intensive" exchanges were underway with Washington and offered to reopen the Strait of Hormuz under strict conditions, as efforts escalated to avert a return to war.

Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi said indirect talks were taking place via mediators. China also urged a return to negotiations, while Iran's security chief discussed the conflict with Russian President Vladimir Putin.

Oil prices, sent rocketing by Iran's blockade of the Strait of Hormuz energy corridor, dropped more than six percent on Monday on optimism over the eight-month-old conflict.

"Given the sensitivity and gravity of the current situation, consultations and deliberations are very intensive," Araghchi said in a video interview with the official IRNA news agency.

"Qatar and Pakistan are playing a very active mediating role in these negotiations."

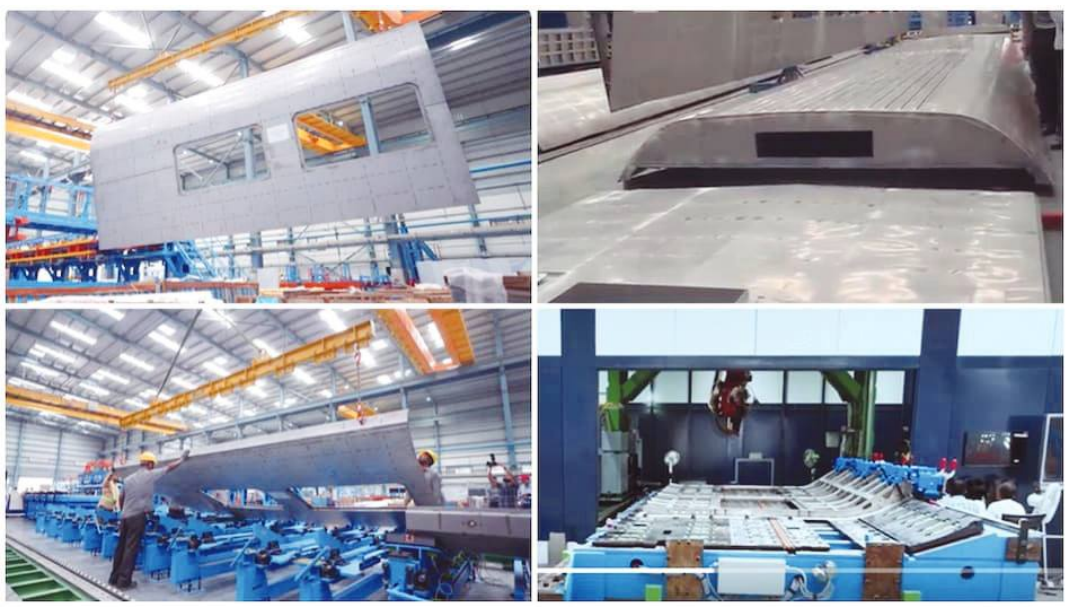

The Axios news outlet reported that US Vice President JD Vance had sent a letter to Iranian national security chief Mohsen Rezaei about possible new talks, marking the highest-level move in months.

The redoubled diplomatic push comes ahead of Tuesday's US midterm elections, where dissatisfaction over the war and higher fuel prices are weighing on US President Donald Trump's Republicans.

First glimpse of how India's first indigenous bullet train is being built

The indigenous B28 trainset, being manufactured by Integral Coach Factory and BEML, is designed for a speed of 280 kmph, with track trials expected by mid-2027

TDT | Business Today

India's first indigenous bullet train is being built at ICF, BEML

Union Railway Minister Ashwini Vaishnaw on Sunday shared a glimpse of India's first indigenously designed bullet train taking shape at BEML's manufacturing facility in Bengaluru.

Vaishnaw inspected the manufacturing unit and witnessed a squeeze test being conducted on the train's structure.

The indigenous B28 trainset, being manufactured by Integral Coach Factory (ICF) and BEML, is designed for a speed of 280 kmph, with track trials expected by mid-2027.

Explaining the different components of the train during his inspection, Vaishnaw said, "The first bullet train we have designed as per international standards. This is the roof wall, this is the side, these are the side walls, and that is the cab. And those are the end walls."

"So, the entire structure is designed as per international standards, and it is undergoing the most rigorous squeeze test because when the train runs at those very high speeds, then around the train, a vacuum gets created," he added.

Union Commerce and Industry Minister Piyush Goyal also shared a separate video showing the manufacturing of the train's side panels.

B28 to run at 280 kmph, B35 next in line

Earlier in October, Vaishnaw had outlined India's indigenous bullet train manufacturing programme, confirming that the first body frame of the B28 was complete and undergoing structural testing.

"ICF and BEML are manufacturing the indigenous B28 trainset, designed for 280 kmph. The first body frame is complete and is undergoing structural testing. Track trials are expected by mid-2027. A faster B35, designed for 350 kmph, is the next step," the minister had said. The B35 trainset, with a design speed of 350 kmph, is planned as the next stage of India's indigenous high-speed rail development.

India is manufacturing bullet train infrastructure too

The government's indigenisation efforts are not limited to train manufacturing.

According to Vaishnaw, major components of the high-speed rail electrification system, including transformers, cross arms mounted on masts, grounding wires, protection wires and feeder wires, are now being manufactured in India.

The J-slab ballastless track system, based on Japanese high-speed rail technology, is also being produced at Indian casting yards by Indian engineers for the first time.

The Union Budget 2026-27 announced seven high-speed rail corridors covering nearly 4,000 km, with expected investments of around Rs 16 lakh crore. The proposed corridors include Mumbai–Pune, Chennai–Bengaluru, Delhi–Varanasi, Bengaluru–Hyderabad, Chennai–Hyderabad, Pune–Hyderabad and Varanasi–Patna–Siliguri.

The projected travel times include Delhi to Lucknow in 2 hours and 10 minutes, Delhi to Varanasi in 3 hours and 50 minutes, Chennai to Bengaluru in 1 hour and 13 minutes, and Mumbai to Pune in just 48 minutes.

The new corridors are expected to build on the engineering standards, domestic suppliers and technical expertise developed through India's first high-speed rail project.

When will India's first bullet train run?

According to the government's plans, India's first high-speed rail service is scheduled to begin in 2027, with the Surat–Vapi section opening first.

The remaining sections of the Mumbai–Ahmedabad high-speed rail corridor will be commissioned in phases.

The indigenous B28 trainset is expected to begin track trials by mid-2027.

Ali Hussain dives off the starting block in the men's 100m freestyle heats

Bahrain's Ali Hussain set a new personal best in the men's 100m freestyle at the fourth Summer Youth Olympic Games in Dakar, Senegal, yesterday, clocking 54.61 seconds to finish joint 32nd overall.

The 17-year-old raced from lane one in Heat Five at the Complexe Tour de l'Oeuf, completing the opening 50 metres in 25.84 seconds before covering the second half in 28.77.

His performance placed him level with Fiji's Thaddeus Kwong among 73 competitors but did not secure a place in the eight-swimmer final.

Speaking after his race, Hussain expressed his delight at achieving a personal milestone on the international stage.

"Alhamdulillah, I was able to break my personal record," he said. "I was also able to participate in a world-renowned championship. I won't forget this my whole life."

Russia's Bogdan Toropkin went on to claim gold in 49.66 seconds, ahead of China's Xie Yichen, who took silver in 50.18, and Chinese Taipei's Lee Han, who secured bronze in 50.26.

Hussain's appearance followed compatriot Sara Mahdi Alqarooni's participation in the women's 100m butterfly on Sunday, when she finished 17th overall in 1:17.82.

Alqarooni, 15, returns to the pool today for the 50m freestyle and 50m butterfly heats as Bahrain continue their campaign in the Senegalese capital.

Bahrain Veterans Storm Into Gulf Cup Semi-Finals

Bahrain booked their place in the GFF Gulf Cup for Veteran Players semi-finals with a 4-0 victory over Yemen at Saud bin Abdulrahman Stadium in Doha, Qatar, yesterday.

The nationals completed their Group B campaign with four points, having previously lost 2-0 to hosts Qatar and drawn 0-0 with the UAE.

Captain Talal Yusuf opened the scoring in the third minute with a superb 25-yard free-kick, curling his effort into the left corner beyond Yemen goalkeeper Salem Saeed.

Six minutes later, the skipper turned provider, releasing Hussain Ali Abdulla through on goal to slot into the bottom-right corner.

Mahmood Abdulrahman, widely known as Ringo, made it 3-0 in the 12th minute, lifting the ball into an unguarded net from outside the box after the goalkeeper saved Yusuf's initial effort.

Bahrain added a fourth in the 28th minute when Ahmed Hassaan collected a cross-field pass on the right flank before squaring for Abdulla to complete his brace.

They now face unbeaten Saudi Arabia in today's semi-final at Hamad bin Khalifa Stadium at 5.30pm, before fellow Group B qualifiers and hosts Qatar, also undefeated, take on defending champions Iraq at the same venue at 7pm.

Elsewhere yesterday, Saudi Arabia defeated Iraq 1-0, Kuwait edged Oman by the same scoreline, and Qatar beat the UAE 2-0.

The second edition of the tournament brings together former Gulf Cup internationals aged 40 and above, with matches played over two 20-minute halves and unlimited substitutions. Knockout ties level after 40 minutes are settled directly by penalties.

Al Shabab, Bahrain Club Complete King's Cup Last 16

TDT | Manama

Al Shabab and Bahrain Club secured the final two places in the 2026-27 His Majesty the King's Cup last 16 yesterday, recording 3-1 victories over Al Tadhamun and Um Al Hassam respectively.

At Riffa Stadium, Al Shabab recovered from a goal down to defeat Tadhamun, inspired by a hat-trick from Yusuf Omotosho.

Ali Al Sari put Tadhamun ahead in the 44th minute, only for Omotosho to equalise in first-half stoppage time before adding further goals in the 54th and 84th minutes, sealing a last-16 meeting with Al Hala.

Meanwhile, at Al Ahli Stadium, Bahrain Club took an early lead through Mohammed Al Ruwaie in the seventh minute before Clement Ogbobe doubled their advantage in the 42nd.

Faisal Al Saleh pulled one back for Um Al Hassam in the 78th minute, but Wellerson da Silva restored Bahrain Club's two-goal cushion eight minutes later to set up a last-16 meeting with Sitra.

Riffa Seek Second Gulf Champions League Victory

Bahrain league leaders visit Al Zawraa in Baghdad looking to build on Qatar SC win

Riffa will look to build on their first victory in the 2026-27 GFF Gulf Club Champions League when they face Iraq's Al Zawraa today at 5.30pm Bahrain time at Al Zawraa Stadium in Baghdad.

The Sky Blues, who lead the Nasser bin Hamad Premier League domestically, enter the Group B encounter following a 4-1 victory over Qatar SC, with captain Ali Hassan scoring twice alongside goals from Tayeb Meziani and Wellington Moreira.

That result marked a welcome response to their opening 3-0 defeat against the UAE's Al Nasr and lifted Mohamed Mashaan's side to second place with three points from two matches.

Al Nasr lead the group with six points, while Al Zawraa and Qatar SC have one apiece after two fixtures.

Antonelli seals historic Formula One world title

AFP | Mexico City

Italian prodigy Kimi Antonelli became the youngest Formula One world champion on Sunday after finishing third in the Mexico Grand Prix to clinch the title with four races to spare.

At 20 years and 68 days old, the Mercedes driver surpassed the previous record set by Sebastian Vettel, who was 23 when he took the crown in 2010.

Antonelli crossed the finish line behind race winner Max Verstappen and Lewis Hamilton to build an unassailable lead over his teammate George Russell.

The achievement makes him the first Italian world champion since Alberto Ascari in 1952.

Antonelli has enjoyed a dominant second campaign in the championship, claiming nine victories and six additional podiums across 19 rounds.

'He is incredibly impressive and deserves to be world champion,' said Hamilton, who previously mentored the Italian within the Mercedes junior driver programme.

Team principal Toto Wolff praised the 20-year-old for coping with immense paddock scrutiny following his rapid promotion to the top flight at age 18.
